Part 3

Questions 19 to 26

You are going to read an extract from an article. For questions 19 to 26, choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D) and mark the correct letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet.

The water was splashing over the side of the sampan which was riding low in the water. When they started, Lina was already apprehensive that the sampan could sink any moment but Pak Jin said it was normal. Believing him and seeing other sampans also riding low in Lake Chini, she felt relaxed but not much.

Lina closed her eyes and relaxed her body while quietly controlling her breathing. Her face could suddenly feel the coolness of the breeze coming distinctly from her right. She opened her eyes but the leaves on the trees by the bank were still. The water was calm and there was no breeze. She pointed in the direction where she had felt the breeze on the face. Pak Jin's face turned a little pale when Lina said, "Can we go there, please?"

Pak Jin's jaws tightened. He started rowing to his right without a word. Lina thought something was frightening him and yet he was silent. If he was afraid, why was he rowing to the spot? As they turned a corner, Lina suddenly felt the cold breeze and the water started to swell as is the tide was coming in but this was a lake and there were no tides. Pak Jin almost lost control of the boat and though Lina found it disconcerting, she just kept quiet.

In the distance, she saw an overhanging tree with two round objects hanging from the branch over the water. She suddenly felt her skin tingle. The legend was true after all. Two children who used to swing on those tyres could not marry when they grew up because of family objections. Despite their many pleas, their families refused to budge. They went to play on the tyres one last time and silently slipped into the water, locked in an embrace. It is said that they will hug anyone who comes too near to their sacred spot. She felt as if someone was calling her. Looking around, she saw nobody.

As Pak Jin neared the tree, Lina could clearly see the individual leaves. She felt the oppressiveness in the atmosphere, as if it was charged with electricity. There was a pungent smell. She broke out into a cold sweat and in a shaky voice asked Pak Jin to turn back. When she reached her hotel, she said her prayers and went to lie down. She will unravel the mystery another day but not today.

Meanwhile, Pak Jin was sitting with other boatmen in his kampong coffee shop. "How was today?" asked Pak Munir. Pak Samad answered, "This one is not bad. When I told her my name was Pak Jin, I could see she was already affected. My pretending to be frightened when she asked me about the tree definitely got her interested."

Pak Munir said, "I sometimes feel like laughing. Pity these tourists. And those workers at the coffee shop next to the hotel are doing a good job feeding them with the lovers committing suicide story. But I like the part where they tell the tourists in order to feel the cold wind, to close their eyes and relax. I sometimes wonder how they can feel something which doesn't exist."

Pak Samad poured his hot coffee into the saucer and scraped the bottom of the cup against the saucer to get rid of the remaining drops. "But at least we get an income." Then he noticed that the coffee in his saucer was beginning to turn in a gentle whirlpool motion as if a finger was stirring it.

Part 5

Questions 33 to 40

Read the texts carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Breathtaking Isles in Malaysia

A – Sipadan Island

Sipadan Island, which lies off the east coast of Sabah, is one of the most beautiful scuba diving spots in the world. Sipadan is not easy to visit; you can only stay at the surrounding islands, Mabul and Kapalai. The best way to travel there is from Kuala Lumpur to Sipadan by direct (daily) flight to Tawau. From there, it is a one-hour drive to the small town of Semporna: where you can find a boat to the islands nearby Sipadan.

B – Tioman Island

In the 70's, TIME magazine selected Tioman as one of the world's most picturesque islands. The area is surrounded by numerous white coral reefs, making it heaven for scuba divers from around the world. You can access the island either through Mersing or Tanjung Gemuk near Kuantan where fast and comfortable ferries and boats are available between April and October.

C -Layang – Layang Island

Located off the coast of Sabah and is the marine heritage known as "The Jewel of the Borneo Banks'. The island has splendid diving conditions with pristine corals because there are no fishing activities and almost no other disturbances. The island only has a naval base, a resort, a diving school and an air strip. There are regular flights to the island from Kota Kinabalu.

D – Redang Island

Redang Island is a small island that lies off the east coast of Terengganu in Malaysia. It's known for its amazing scenery and fabulous underwater activities. If you are not a diver, don't worry as the next popular activity is snorkelling! You can still have amazing experiences without diving down deep!

E – Perhentian Islands

This is the top choice for anyone who likes underwater activities as diving and snorkelling here are some of the best in the region. There are also opportunities to volunteer and help preserve the gorgeous marine flora and fauna that the Perhentian Islands are famous for. If you want to do something a little different, you can even camp under the stars. You can access the islands through Kuala Besut jetty.

F – Babi Besar Island

An idyllic paradise just 4 hours from Singapore, Pulau Babi Besar is the kind of picturesque island you see in holiday brochures – at a fraction of the price. The beaches look exactly like the ones you see in the Maldives. There's not a whole lot to do there, but that's part of the appeal! It's so stunning that you'll be happy to walk along the beach just to marvel at its beauty.
