It was the first day of school, and Alex sat alone in the cafeteria, nervously picking at his sandwich. Having recently moved to a new town, everything around him felt strange and overwhelming. The students nearby were chatting and laughing comfortably with their friends, creating an atmosphere of excitement and ease that Alex could not yet share. He was a stranger to everyone around him and the sense of isolation made him wish he were anywhere else.

Just as he was about to stand up and leave, a warm voice interrupted his thoughts. "Hey, you're new here, right?" Alex looked up and saw a boy with a friendly smile standing in front of him. "I'm Daniel. Do you want to sit with us?" he offered.

A wave of relief washed over Alex. He smiled and nodded, grateful for the kind gesture. He followed Daniel to a nearby table where a small group of students welcomed him with genuine warmth. From that moment onward, a meaningful friendship began to blossom between Alex and Daniel.

As they spent more time together, they discovered that they had a lot in common. Both were passionate about football, enjoyed playing video games and shared a similar sense of humour. While Alex aspired to become a doctor, driven by a desire to help others, Daniel dreamed of becoming a professional artist. Although their future goals were different, their shared interests and mutual support formed a solid foundation for their friendship.

In the weeks that followed, the two became inseparable. They walked home from school together, shared their lunches and helped each other with homework. Whenever Alex felt discouraged or struggled with his schoolwork, Daniel was always there to motivate him. Likewise, when Daniel faced challenges at home, Alex provided a listening ear and comforting advice.

One day, the school announced that a football tournament would be held in two weeks, and both friends eagerly signed up. Determined to perform well, they began practising every evening after school, working hard to improve their teamwork and skills. They dreamed of winning the tournament together.

However, a week before the match, Alex twisted his ankle during a training session. The doctor advised him to rest for at least two weeks, which meant he wouldn't be able to play in the tournament. As if that wasn't enough, he also caught the flu a few days later and had to miss several days of school. Though disappointed, Alex chose to make the best of the situation and used his time at home to focus on preparing for the upcoming exams.

Meanwhile, Daniel continued practising with the team. During one practice session, he noticed Alex sitting quietly on the bench, watching with a mixture of pride and sadness. Daniel approached him and said, "You're still part of the team, Alex. We need your support, even if you can't play."

On the day of the tournament, Alex cheered enthusiastically from the sidelines. He watched with admiration as Daniel gave his best performance on the field. In the final match, Daniel scored two goals, leading their team to a well-earned victory. As soon as the final whistle blew and the trophy was awarded, Daniel rushed over to Alex.

23. What did Daniel do after winning the tournament?

A. He celebrated privately with his good friend, Alex.

B. He gave a speech thanking the entire team for their hard work.

C. He kept the trophy and focused on preparing for the next match.

D. He shared the moment with Alex to show appreciation for his support.

24. What lesson did Alex learn about friendship?

A. Friendships only last when people stay in touch every day.

B. True friends are those who enjoy the same hobbies and activities.

C. A strong friendship will begin at school and continue without challenges.

D. Real friendship means being there for each other in both good and bad times.

25. From the passage, what word can we use to describe Daniel?

26. What is the main message of the text?

A. Achieving personal goals is more important than helping others.

Questions 33 to 40 are based on the following texts.
Read the texts carefully and answer the questions that follow.

How Teenagers Make Money?

A – Aiman, 16

Sometimes I help my neighbours to wash their cars, cut the grass or carry heavy things. It does not pay much, but every little bit helps. I save most of the money for things I really want, like video games or sports equipment. Doing these small jobs also teaches me responsibility and hard work. I feel proud knowing that I'm earning money on my own.

B – Adelina, 17

I work part-time at a bakery on weekends. It's quite tiring because I have to wake up early, but I enjoy it. I learn a lot about customer service and baking too. The best part is getting paid every month, which gives me more independence. I also use the money to buy things I need and save for the future.

C – Jason, 15

I sell my old books and clothes online. I use apps to post pictures and chat with buyers. It's simple and I don't need to spend any money to get started. It also helps me clear my room and be more organised. I feel happy knowing my items can be reused by others instead of being thrown away.

D – Ainaa, 16

I save money from my school pocket money. I try not to buy snacks every day and bring food from home. After a few months, I usually have enough to buy something nice. Saving is slow, but I like knowing I earned it myself. It also teaches me to be more disciplined and think carefully before spending.

E – Vincent, 17

My cousin and I run a small online business. We design and sell phone cases which are handmade. We started with just a few designs, but now we have many customers. It's fun and creative and we both learn about business at the same time. We also handle customer service, manage orders and promote our products through social media platforms.

F – Sarah, 16

I tutor younger kids in English and Math. I only teach two students, but it allows me to revise what I've learned as well. Their parents pay me weekly. It feels good to help someone and earn money at the same time. I also learn to be more patient, responsible and better at explaining things in a simple way.
